Summerfield WALDORF SCHOOL AND FARM

APRIL 26, 2018 VOLUME 30, ISSUE 8

TWELFTH ANNUAL DINNER AND AUCTION ON THE FARM Farm to Feast saturday, may 19, 2018, 4-9pm

Please join us on Saturday, May 19, for Farm to Feast 2018, our largest fundraiser of the year!

"Little thoughts will get us nowhere, so we must pluck up the courage to think great thoughts" ~ RUDOLF STEINER

This year we will recognize our resilience as a community and celebrate our strength with a familiar and cozy farm-to-table dinner under the walnut tree. Enjoy a unique silent auction with artisanal items while sampling delicious appetizers and amazing wines from local vintners. We will all then come together for a beautiful, local and seasonal dinner accompanied by live music and compelling speakers. Food and libations will continue throughout the evening. Here's a quick overview:

| 4:00-6:00pm | Wine Tasting with exclusive, award winning wineries, passed appetizers, live music and silent auction |
|-------------|---|
| 6:00-7:30pm | Dinner Seating and service, guest speakers, live auction and Fund-A-Need |

7:30-10:00pm Dessert and coffee service, live music by the Honkeytonk Stumbleweeds with dancing and outdoor bonfire

THANK YOU to our generous, award-winning chefs, vintners and community partners:

Feast Makers: Lowell Sheldon and Natalie Goble of Handline and Lowell's, Moishe Hahn-Schuman and Matthew Williams of Ramen Gaijin, Sarah Piccolo of Fork Roadhouse & Catering, Jennifer Johnson and Serafina Palandech of Hip Chick Farms, Joe Zobel of Lowell's, Emma Uribe of Handline, Adam Davidoff and Ryan Power of New Family Farm, Laura Matis of Acre Coffee, and our own Bill Dator and Dana Revallo of Summerfield. Dinner will be orchestrated by Nick Peyton of Cyrus, Healdsburg Bar & Grill and Two Birds/ One Stone

May Faire Apron Sale

Summerfield's Handwork Guild has been hard at work sewing popular Japanese-style Cross-Back Aprons, similar to those worn by the early childhood teachers. These will be sold at the May Faire, just in time for Mother's Day. This year's choices are a natural organic linen from Belle Notte Linens and a heavier weight linen print.

All proceeds benefit the school's Lunch Program. Please bring cash or a check. Sliding scale $60 to $80.

If you can't be at the May Faire but would like an apron, please email me at amullennix@gmail.com.

Thank you for your support!

~ Addie Mullenix, for the Handwork Guild

The Spirit of Volunteering

Spring is in the air, and preparations are underway for our annual Farm to Feast fundraising event. As many of you know, this is our largest fundraiser of the year—one that is vital to the daily operations of our school. What many of you may not know is that this event could not happen without a lot of volunteers!

One of the most amazing qualities of this school is the sense of community. As a parent, I am always thinking of ways to volunteer, particularly in areas that are in need of my skill set. I have come to learn that Farm to Feast offers opportunities for a great variety of interests, abilities and schedules! If you are creative you might like to help with décor, flower arranging or promotions. If you are more geared towards organization or administrative work, there is a place for you on the set-up team.

Even if you don't have much time to give, a little effort is hugely appreciated and needed. Plus, you will meet some great people along the way, and most likely form new friendships.

Farm to Feast is all about raising funds for our community and wonderful school and, yet, at the same time, this lovely event builds and strengthens our own parent community through volunteering together. See you at Farm to Feast!

Please contact our Farm to Feast Volunteer Coordinator, carrie@summerfieldwaldorf.org for more information.

May Faire: Celebrating Spring & Community

By Michelle Bovard on behalf of the May Faire Committee

We are all familiar with the proverb "April showers bring May flowers," and so it was fitting that the first morning back from Spring Break was a drizzly April morning. As our May Faire committee is busy making plans, we can rest assured that Mother Nature is busy growing the bounty of flowers that will soon adorn our children's crowns and decorate our Faire. We hope that you will join us for our annual community May Faire celebration on Friday, May 4.

The May Pole dancing will again take place in the freshness of the morning, when the children are able to experience it in a deep and reverent way, and then carry that experience with them throughout the day. Of course all families are warmly welcomed to watch the children dance (10–11:30am) and then join in the community dance that follows. When the dancing comes to a close, the children will return to class and complete the school day. When the 3pm bell rings, the fun-filled Faire begins.

Elements of the Faire will include flower garland-making, crafts, activities, the dump bucket (bring a towel and extra clothes!) food and music. The cost for children's unlimited activities will be $10 for one child, $13 for two siblings, and $18 for three siblings. A taco salad meal and strawberry shortcake will be available for purchase from Grades Twelve and Eleven respectively.

PLEASE NOTE THE FOLLOWING IMPORTANT INFORMATION:

• On Thursday Morning, May 3 (the morning before the event) all families are asked to bring flowers and greenery for the head-garlands and general Faire décor.

- Friday morning after drop-off volunteers are needed to set-up May Pole dancing area
- Please wear white or pastel clothing- especially students.
- During the May Pole dancing, please remember to hold the space around the students as we would in any other performance, with quiet attention and reverence!
- As always, please refrain from taking pictures during the event, especially during the May Pole dancing.
- Bring cash for the Faire activities/offerings and the meal/shortcake.
- Bring blankets for seating, utensils and plates for eating, and hats and sunscreen for protection.
- Volunteers are needed! The May Faire volunteer sign-up sheet is on the Main Office door! Decorating, clean-up and parking assistance, as well as the filling of various May Faire roles (pocket ladies, ticket-sellers) are being sought, so PLEASE volunteer by signing up on the main office door as well as for your own class activity or offering.

Thank you!

Kindergarten Teacher News

It is with real joy that we announce the hiring of Saree Heydenfeldt—otherwise known as Miss Saree—as our Lead Yellow Rose Kindergarten teacher, beginning this fall.

Saree has been working in our Early Childhood village consistently for three years now, wearing many hats and aprons.

As her colleagues, we have been highly impressed by her teaching skills and her attention to detail, in the classroom and behind the scenes. Equally notable is the way the children both admire her and delight in her presence. We often hear the refrain, "That's Miss Saree!" as she goes about her work every day.

Her love for children and her dedication to working with the young child is inspiring. We are so grateful to be able to continue working with Saree in this new capacity.

We look forward to introducing her more formally in an upcoming issue of the Messenger.

Online Re-Enrollment Due by May 4, 2018

Re-enroll your student(s) for the 2018-2019 school year now!

In order to secure your student's spot in the upcoming new school-year, re-enrollment must be completed by by May 4, 2018.

After May 4, enrollment will be opened to wait pool applicants, of which there are several. The link to Online Re-Enrollment is accessed through the Parent Portal (portals.veracross.com/swsf).

Please reference the email regarding re-enrollment, sent to all parents on Monday, April 23, for more information.

If you have questions or need assistance with any part of the process, please contact Andrea Trinei, Registrar, at registrar@summerfieldwaldorf.org.

For questions regarding your contract (tuition, fees, financial aid), contact Judy Reid in the Finance Office at judy@summerfieldwaldorf.org.

Spring Music Concert

Tuesday, May 15, at 7pm in Sophia Hall

The High School Orchestra, Choir, Recorder Ensemble, and American Music groups will charm, enthrall, and delight one and all in the Hall.

Students will present their musical talents for family and friends in our High School Spring Concert. Everyone welcome!

Elections for the Board

This is the time of year when the SWSF Board of Directors holds elections for new and continuing members, so please watch your mailbox for ballots and 'Vote!' (Note: only SWSF Corporation members may vote, but all parents are eligible to become a member: look for the Eligibility Form as you complete online re-enrollment).

As you probably know, the Board is comprised of a mix of parents, teachers, and alumni/ae, and manages the legal and financial responsibilities of the school. If you have general professional or management experience, expertise in financial and legal arenas, or just a strong interest in serving the school, we would love to talk to you. Although the candidates for current board seats have all been selected via a thorough process, there are still many openings on committees for those who would like a more specific focus or who are new to the school. Please feel free to come to any board meeting or speak to any member about opportunities to serve in this capacity.

Questions can be directed to Board President Jefferson Buller at jjbuller@sonic.net.

Sign Up for Earth Ecology Camp!

Earth Ecology Camp is filling up fast. We love to offer our Summerfield students this wonderful opportunity to learn ecology, arts and farming in the permaculture garden. Please sign up today!

Camp runs June 18-22 and is for students aged 10-14.

~ Thanks, Ronni Sands

ALUMNI PROFILE: Sydney Conner CLASS OF 2012

Interview by Caryn Stone, Development Coordinator

Please tell us about your current work.

I work at Levi Strauss & Co as a merchant for the Dockers brand. I interned at Dockers the summer after my junior year of college, which led to a full time job post-graduation. I have now been there for about one and a half years.

As a merchant, I work to put together our product assortment that will be sold in the US market and support our sales team in bringing it to market. My job is to be an expert on the US men's apparel market trends and our target consumer's needs and make sure that the product we sell is successfully addressing both of these, while staying true to who we are as a brand.

Did you always know you wanted to be involved in this field?

Yes, although it has evolved over the years. From a young age, I loved clothes and dressing up. I have always seen clothing as an external way to express one's individuality and as an outlet for embracing the spectrum of characters we all embody at different times. As I got older, I became more interested in the business side and the importance of consumer insights. Being able to study people and then channel that into products that will benefit their life is fascinating to me.

Overall, I think I've been interested in the retail industry since early on in high school as a field where I could combine my strength in academic subjects with my love of creativity and design. I graduated from Cornell University in 2016, having studied Fiber Science and Apparel Design with a concentration in design management and a minor in business. And I had multiple internships in the field that helped me to refine what specialty I was interested in, which led me to merchandising.

How did your experience at Summerfield impact your life? How about your career choice today?

A really important part of my experience was learning how to build relationships and community with a wide range of people. Because the school is quite small, I was encouraged to build close relationships with my peers, teachers and the supporting staff, which has had a positive, lasting impact on my life. In college, I felt comfortable approaching teachers in classes of 200 and building the same relationship with him/her as I did with my teacher in a class of 20. In my career, this has been valuable, as I work closely with colleagues across the whole management structure. Summerfield instilled in me a natural sense of equal value, which has encouraged me to foster close relationships with people from all different teams and levels.

Do you feel that your education at Summerfield prepared you for life (or college) and your career?

Absolutely. One of the biggest benefits I got from Summerfield was strong leadership and ownership skills. In Waldorf education you are taught very early to own your work—through main lesson books, academic projects (culminating in your senior thesis) and even semester-long art projects such as the fire poker in ninth grade and the senior portrait and bust. Maintaining and completing these projects takes individual leadership and ownership, which are invaluable skills for college and the real world. In college and certainly in life, there isn't always going to be someone there, telling you what to do or having the same level of care in your work, so it falls on the individual to be one's own leader. Learning via creation through to completion taught me accountability for my work and the ability to organize my thoughts cohesively.

Do you see yourself continuing your current work/education/path?

Definitely. I love my job and, particularly with the major changes happening in the retail industry with the rise of e-commerce and technology, there is always something new to learn and a new challenge to face. I haven't ruled out graduate school for an MBA, but right now I am really enjoying working.

Pieces of April from the Summerfield Farmyard been swarming this week. A baby owl

By Farmer Dan

Socrates used to love to wander through the marketplace and look at all the things he could do without. Over the long and pleasant recent spring break, while wandering through my double garage and then my backyard, there sure were a lot of things that I discovered would be very easy to do without. Earlier, during the break, while standing on the golden cloth of sand out at Drake's Bay on Point Reyes, it had been easy to be mesmerized by all the wrack that had washed ashore in the windy bay. This gave me pause to reflect on just how much wrack, so to speak, had washed ashore into the lives of the students I teach, and I asked myself when some "spring cleaning" would be in order in the curriculum for each grade. What had I brought that the students could do without, and what had I brought that was essential? How do farming and gardening lessons enhance and deepen the way and the extent to which interest, concentration, enthusiasm, and adaptability are able to develop, allowing for real, soul-spirit interest in other people and in our world?

Some kindergarteners and many first graders are losing a lot of their baby teeth and are unable to eat their almonds for snacks on the farm. The kindergartners still love to go on annual Easter egg hunts on the farm and, this year, it would have been very easy to hide an egg in or too close to a fresh patch of poison oak—it is a lush year for poison oak. Bees have fell from its high nesting box and died, and then a second baby fell and was found in time to be rescued and brought to the raptor hospital to be incubated and re-nourished. When intense rains suddenly ceased, the somewhat barren pasture suddenly produced a bounty of towering star thistles. A greenhouse full of flats of seeds planted before spring break suddenly sprung up and were begging the sixth grade students to please, please be transplanted into six packs to continue to stretch and grow. The cows were bumping their backs and heads on the rafters in the winter barns in a sudden urgent need to have the foot-and-a-half of manure shoveled out from under their feet to be whisked out to the new compost rows in need of forming on the farm. Peach trees developed peach curl and needed the diseased leaves pinched off to ensure a healthy summer crop. The apple trees in their graceful row had their trunks covered with snails from the tall, rain-soaked, spring grasses and needed their annual "painting" of Biodynamic tree paste to protect them from bugs, fungus, and the scalding of the mid-summer sun that is fast approaching. The raspberry patch requested attention as well, as the old canes needed pruning back and, here and there, plants were in need of replacement. A new Jersey calf was also gently swelling the belly of mama May, due in early June, with the renewed promise of fresh yogurt soon to be had in our recently refurbished farm stand...

In other words, life goes on all around us and the students thrive when immersed in it. Throughout the busy month of May, all the field crops have to get planted, mostly by the third graders, which include potatoes, onions, field and broom corn, winter squashes and pumpkins, shelling beans, and an assortment of flowers for bouquets and some for used for dying wool in the handwork classes. The rebel, off-season crop, garlic, that was planted in the winter is thriving and will be ready for a late June or July summer harvest. Tomato plants and trellises have been set up in the new hoop house, as well as summer squashes and ongoing lettuce to help supply our student lunch program. Then, too, the student gardens in the farmyard are being busily tended in order to be ship-shape for the Farm to Feast celebration soon to be held under the blooming Walnut tree near where the lavender plants in need of a snipping await the snippers of busy student helpers. And yes, the chickens and ducks continue their dirtying work so that the weekly pond and chicken house cleaning remains a forever task of the cheerful fourth graders under the supervision of the newly shorn sheep and cashmere goats, with frequent breaks to hold and cuddle the rabbits that reside in their cage next to the duck pond.

So back to the curriculum planning this article began with... my introspective question about what I have been bringing to the students. Really, of course, the question is what has the land and the weather and the rhythm of the seasons brought to the students in the daily tasks at hand, and how have I merely orchestrated what needs to be done in a reasonably coherent pedagogical fashion? Physical work helps the students (and adults) find a point of rest in the center of their being by encountering a world where all things are at rest in the same way. To see, judge, and act from the point of rest in ourselves, so much disappears and all that remains falls into place. This transformation happens in the students of all ages who are given the opportunity to work on the farm and in the gardens.

As spring rains retreat, one's being seems increasingly filled with light and people seem to start to shine a little bit more. The peeper frogs and the crickets seem to sing with their whole bodies and, looking around Sonoma County, one wonders just how many miracles a human being beholds in one's lifetime while realizing in a few sacred moments that yes, there is still ecstasy in a world of cell phones and politics. The world's unspeakable kindness radiates from new light in the fields in the way a farm animal or a young child looks into your heart at the most unsuspecting moment. Or when a young student shyly shares a joke with the farmer, after first asking if I am a vegetarian, and then continues with, "How do you stop Canadian bacon from curling in the pan? Take away its tiny brooms." And then scampers back to class.

Like students sometimes do, while I was hiking with her class over the hills on a recent field trip to the Bale Grist Mill State Park, a third grader asked me nonchalantly, "Farmer Dan, do you pray?" and followed her question up with "What is praying, anyway?" Here is the poet Mary Oliver's answer to her question:

PRAYING BY MARY OLIVER

It doesn't have to be the blue iris, it could be weeds in a vacant lot, or a few small stones; just pay attention, then patch

a few words together and don't try to make them elaborate, this isn't a contest but the doorway

Into thanks, and a silence in which Another voice may speak.

Blessings on your gardens! Warmly, Farmer Dan

Parent Robyn Prusky writes, "For Dagan, learning unicyle was one of the biggest confidence builders he has had at Summerfield. I cannot believe he built the core, and muscle strength, to ride. During the parade, when the audience yelled and clapped for Summerfield, the children beamed with happiness."

EXTRA Circus Summer Camp for Advanced Performers

Circus Waldissima has added an extra Advanced Program Summer Camp for grades 5-12 students who will get to use the skills they already know to begin creating routines and learning performance skills! We will focus on stage presence, working as an ensemble, what makes a compelling performance, and how to create an act that is truly your own! We will also learn some new tricks and skills. Students should possess a basic understanding of any circus skill (juggling, aerial, clowning, tumbling or any other skill).

When: June 11-15 or June 18-22 Time: 1:30-4:30pm Cost: $195 Register by: May 18

Bone broth made by Farmer Dana

Made to nourish the mind, body and soul, with grass-fed beef bones sourced from Sonoma County Meat Company, our bone broth is incredibly nutritious. Rich in protein, collagen, and minerals, bone broth is very alkalinizing and good for your gut flora. Drink on its own or use as a base for soups. $8 per quart. Call or text (707) 570-5484 to order.
